

Louisiana Lutheran Churches in Hurricane Katrina area

Christ the King, Kenner (near the airport on the west side of the city), Pr. Ron Unger just accepted the call there and was to begin on Sept. 1.

St. Mark, Metairie– the next suburb area moving east from Kenner, located two blocks from the levee) Pr. Lisa Gaye.

Grace, New Orleans; Pr. Dan Duke, fairly new facility not too far from the big cemeteries.

Bethlehem, New Orleans, south of Route I-10 in a poorer part of the city, and about 115 years old, African American primarily; Pr. Pat Keen

Gethsemane, Chalmette, south east of downtown and across the Mississippi River from the West Bank, hit very hard by the storm; Pr. Jim Shears

Peace, Slidell, eastern end of the metro area – only about seven miles from Louisiana-Mississippi state border, hit very hard also by the storm; Pr. Barb Simmers

Hosanna, Covington, on the north side of Lake Pontchartrain, just moved into a new facility, not as much flooding, but lots of damage from fallen trees and wind damage; Pr. Anton Kern and Pr. Sean Ewbanks.

Love Lutheran, in an area known as Algiers; Pr. Scott Landrum

House of Prayer, Harvey, Pr. Chris Markert

Good Shepherd ,Marrero– Dr. Bob Gnuse

Galilean, La Place – west of New Orleans toward Baton Rouge, Pr. Ron Unger just, resigned to accept the Call to Kenner

Our Saviors and St. Paul, both in Baton Rouge; Interim Pr. Robin McCollough-Bade and Pr. Stan Eckermann, respectively.